2. Reasons for revisions

Due to the nature of the Group's overall financial business, including its investment and securities-related businesses, which are highly susceptible to the stock market and other volatile factors, the Company generally does not disclose earnings forecasts. However, the Company is to promptly disclose an earnings forecast when it becomes possible to make a rational estimation.

In the first half of the fiscal year ending March 31, 2022, in addition to the steady growth of its financial services business, the Company expects to record a large amount of valuation gains from the July to September period of this year, owing to the rise in share prices of listed stocks and the large increase in the per-share valuation of several unlisted companies that has raised new funds, in which the Group invests in, as well as gains on the sales of equity of the Group's investee companies through M&A transactions, etc. Due to these factors, the Company's consolidated profit before income tax expense for the first half of fiscal year ending March 31, 2022, which is currently under scrutiny, is expected to be in the range of JPY 100 billion to JPY 110 billion, a record high for the first half of a fiscal year.

As mentioned earlier, though the Company generally does not disclose earnings forecasts, this announcement is made since the Company is expecting to achieve a significant increase over the results for the same period of the previous year, and the deviation between the earnings figures forecasted by external securities companies and some media has become more extensive.

The Company's consolidated financial results for the first half of the fiscal year ending March 31, 2022 is scheduled to be announced on October 28, 2021.
