1. Questionnaire

Method of Evaluation

Self-evaluation by questionnaire survey

The Company conducts the deeper identification of issues by a multiple-choice method (to choose issues on which sufficient discussion has not been conducted at Board of Directors meetings) and a questionnaire on strengths and weaknesses of the Board of Directors.

Evaluation items

We employed an external organization and received advice on the question design, analysis, possible response measure, etc. to improve the objectivity and the transparency of evaluation.

3. Evaluation results

The external organization commented favorably that the Company is working seriously on the evaluation of the effectiveness of the Board of Directors and is striving to improve its corporate value further by steadily identifying issues and implementing measures to address them. In particular, the external organization's evaluation improved significantly on items on which the Company implemented measures based on issues identified in the previous year, and the external organization commented that the measures have been effective. Regarding "Medium-term plan and long-term management strategies (what we should become in 10 years)" and "Human resource development and strategies," which were among the issues identified in the previous year, the Company held discussion forums of Directors including Outside Directors separately from Board of Directors meetings and has formulated a new medium-term management plan based on the discussion there. Regarding "Revision of the risk map," the Company modified the corporate governance structure to establish the Risk Management Subcommittee, which is responsible for the management of risk map, under the Internal Control Committee in order to revamp and strengthen the risk management structure itself.

The effectiveness of the Board of Directors has generally been ensured.

The Board of Directors will endeavor to enhance the effectiveness of the Board of Directors and further strengthen corporate governance by continuing to address these matters systematically.
