Notice Regarding Change in Industrial Classification of Company Stock

Robot Home, Inc. (the “Company”) hereby announces that, although its stock is presently classified under “Construction” on the Tokyo Stock Exchange, where the Company’s stock is listed, the industrial classification will be changed to “Real Estate” as decided by the Securities Identification Code Committee.

In line with the change, the stock section of newspapers, etc., will be changed to reflect classification to the “Real Estate” business.

There will be no change to the Company’s securities code (1435).

1. Details of the change

Present Classification	Classification After Change
Construction	Real Estate

2. Reason for the change

At the time of the Company’s listing on the Tokyo Stock Exchange in 2015, the Company was classified under “Construction” because our primary business was the provision of land information and the planning and construction of design apartments.

However, the Company has shifted from a revenue structure centered on flow sales through the planning, construction, and delivery of design apartments to a business model that emphasizes stock sales, mainly in the rental management business, which uses technology to perform asset management for real estate owners. Consequently, the Company meets the criteria for changing its industry affiliation as stipulated in the “Guidelines for Handling Industrial Classifications” set forth by the Securities Identification Code Committee, and will change its business affiliation to the “Real Estate” business.
