Announcement Regarding Partial Amendment to Articles of Incorporation and Shelf Registration of Series 1 Bond-type Class Shares

Rakuten Group, Inc. (Head office: Setagaya-ku, Tokyo; Representative Director, Chairman and CEO: Hiroshi Mikitani; hereinafter the “Company”) announces that the Board of Directors today resolved (i) to make a proposal at the 27th Annual General Shareholders Meeting to be held on March 28, 2024 to partially amend its Articles of Incorporation (hereinafter the “Amendment”) and (ii) to make a shelf registration for Series 1 Bond-type Class Shares.

- I. Partial Amendment to Articles of Incorporation
- 1. Partial Amendment to Articles of Incorporation in Relation to an additional business purpose

We would like to amend Article 2 (Purpose) of the current Articles of Incorporation to add a business purpose related to AI in consideration of future business development and other factors.

- 2. Partial Amendment to Articles of Incorporation in Relation to Bond-type Class Shares
- (1) Purpose of and Reason of Amendment to Articles of Incorporation

The Company’s basic management philosophy is “to contribute to society by creating value through innovation and entrepreneurship.” The Company provides, both in Japan and overseas, through more than 70 services in a wide range of businesses, including Internet services (such as EC, travel reservations, and digital content), FinTech (financial) services (such as credit cards, banking, securities, insurance, and e-money), mobile services (such as mobile carrier business), and management of professional sports. As such, the Company organically links services provided by the Company group on the axis of memberships mainly consisting of Rakuten memberships, thereby creating the Rakuten Ecosystem (economic sphere), which is a concept wholly unique to the Company.

The Company group develops its business by uniting memberships, data, and brands it owns to expand the Rakuten Ecosystem, thereby developing an environment where members in Japan and overseas can easily browse and access multiple services continuously in rotation. As such, the Company group aims to leverage its synergies to maximize the lifetime value of each member, to generate synergistic effects such as minimizing customer acquisition costs, and to maximize the group’s earnings. Recently, as user mobile shifts are steadily taking place, the gross transaction value of “Rakuten Ichiba” and other services of the Company group through mobile devices is consistently increasing. To further expand and newly develop the Company group’s services, there is no doubt that mobile services are the most important touch point with users; under the circumstances where 5G is spreading and IoT (Internet of Things) is being disseminated in society, it is conceivable that mobile devices will become more indispensable to people’s lives. It is extremely significant for the Company group, which develops a wide variety of services, to operate its mobile business because it contributes to enhancement of the Rakuten Ecosystem, as well as achievement of the Company group’s further growth and improvement of corporate value resulting from such enhancement.

While the Company focuses on further expansion of such mobile business, it aims to maintain mid-term financial soundness. The Company is committed to implementing disciplined financial policies, and it believes it is desirable to strengthen its financial base through reducing interest-bearing debt by equity-related financings and conduct proactive control of debt maturity schedule, etc. The Company has conducted monetization of various assets/businesses, including: (i) disposal of a portion offering of its shares in accordance with the listing of Rakuten Bank, Ltd. on the Prime Market of Tokyo Stock Exchange, Inc. (hereinafter the “Tokyo Stock Exchange”); (ii) issuance of new shares of the Company through a public offering and third-party allotment; (iii) an additional transfer of common shares of Rakuten Securities, Inc. to Mizuho Securities Co., Ltd. for strengthening of the strategic capital and business alliance between Rakuten Securities Holdings, Inc. and Mizuho Securities Co., Ltd.; and (iv) the oversea secondary offering of common shares in Rakuten Bank, Ltd. The Company will continue to flexibly consider further financing through non-interest bearing debt.

Based on the above background, the Company decided that an issuance of “bond-type class shares” would be a useful option as a means of financing that would diversify its potential financing resources while minimizing harm to the interests of existing holders of the Company’s common shares (hereinafter the “Common Shareholders”) and would enhance its equity capital and that this option would fulfill the needs of a wide range of investors, including individual investors, as set forth below.

- As the holders of these bond-type class shares would have no right to vote at General Shareholders Meetings and no right of conversion into common shares, voting rights will not be diluted (because these shares have no right to vote at General Shareholders Meetings and no right of conversion into common shares irrespective of shareholding ratio, among other reasons, the Company believes that they do not have any features that could be used as a measure to prevent acquisition; therefore, it is not anticipated that these shares will be used as a measure to prevent acquisition).
- These bond-type class shares are “non-participation type” class shares, for which no dividends will exceed the initially specified amount of preferred dividends. The participation right for dividends exceeding preferred dividends will belong solely to Common Shareholders.
- These bond-type class shares will be issued within the total number of existing shares authorized to be issued (the total number issuable obtained by adding the number of common shares and bond-type class shares) and the Company does not intend to increase the total number of shares authorized to be issued by making this proposal.

The company intends to issue bond-type class shares in the future not through shareholder allotment (including allotment without consideration) or third-party allotment, but through public offering(s) in Japan, and anticipates applying for the listing of these shares on the Prime Market of the Tokyo Stock Exchange. These bond-type class shares will be “bond-type” class shares that are designed to constitute a product in which a wide range of investors can invest while mitigating dilution or other impacts which may occur to Common Shareholders. The Company will therefore amend its Articles of Incorporation and take other relevant measures so that the Company will be able to issue the Series 1 Bond-type Class Shares to the Series 5 Bond-type Class Shares (hereinafter the “Bond-type Class Shares”) as “bond-type” class shares.

In addition, please refer to “Explanatory Materials Regarding Bond-type Class Shares” and “Q&A Regarding Bond-type Class Shares” which are released by the Company today.

(2) Features of Bond-type Class Shares

The Bond-type Class Shares are contemplated to constitute a product in which a wide range of investors can invest while minimizing dilution of voting rights or other possible effects to Common Shareholders and have the following features:

(a) Feature as “bond-type” class shares

In order to pay close attention to the interest of the Company’s Common Shareholders, the Bond-type Class Shares are of a hybrid design, which has (i) aspects similar to “corporate bonds” in that no dividends will be paid exceeding the initially-specified amount of preferred dividends and no dilution of voting rights will be caused, and (ii) aspects of “shares” for enhancing equity capital.

Accordingly, the Company believes that it is possible to issue the Bond-type Class Shares without diluting the voting rights of Common Shareholders and to enhance equity capital for ensuring a sound financial base while mitigating effects on the Company’s financial indices (including ROE and EPS in relation to common shares) exceeding those in the case of a capital increase through common shares.

(Note) Referring to the case where, when calculating the ROE and EPS in relation to common shares, the calculation is conducted by deducting the portion relating to class shares (the amount to be paid in for class shares and preferred dividends) from the amount of net assets and net profit, which will be the base.

(b) Characteristics similar to hybrid bonds

When issuing the Bond-type Class Shares, in principle, the Company anticipates designing them to be similar to hybrid bonds in order to make them eligible for equity credit (to constitute 50% of the financed amount) from ratings agencies (Rating and Investment Information, Inc. (R&I), Japan Credit Rating Agency, Ltd. (JCR), and S&P Global Ratings Japan Inc. (S&P)); the Company is considering giving these shares the following main features (Note 1).

(Main features)

- Preferred Dividends: Initially, fixed dividends will be distributed for approximately five years from issuance; thereafter, variable dividends will be distributed. The Bond-type Class Shares will be given preference over common shares and be accumulation-type, non-participation type.
  - Call by the Company: The Company may acquire the Bond-type Class Shares with cash consideration after the lapse of five years or so from issuance.
  - Restriction on Refinancing: If the Company is to acquire the Bond-type Class Shares through call, etc., in principle, it will use equity-related financing, at an amount at least equivalent to that of the Bond-type Class Shares (Note 2).
  - Voting Rights: None.
  - Right of Conversion into Common Shares: None.
- (Note 1) They may not be eligible for equity credit from rating agencies depending on the amount of funds raised and other factors.
- (Note 2) In case of hybrid bonds, if an issuing company is to call the bonds before maturity, it is common to issue hybrid bonds, etc. that are eligible for an equity credit of equivalent amount or more by setting a restriction on refinancing. Thus, the Company has set authorization for issuance of up to Series 5 in its Articles of Incorporation so that it will be able to issue new Bond-type Class Shares when it intends to call for existing Bond-type Class Shares.

On the other hand, unlike general hybrid bonds (excluding undated subordinate bonds), the amount financed through issuance of the Bond-type Class Shares will be recorded as capital, in terms of accounting.

(3) Issuance through public offering; listing on the Tokyo Stock Exchange

The Company intends to issue the Bond-type Class Shares through public offering(s) in Japan and to apply for listing of these shares on the Prime Market of the Tokyo Stock Exchange, thereby contemplating making them a product in which individual investors can invest.

(4) General Class Shareholders Meeting

Under the Companies Act, shareholders holding the Bond-type Class Shares (hereinafter the “Bond-type Class Shareholders”) can only resolve matters provided for in the Companies Act and matters provided for in the Articles of Incorporation at a General Class Shareholders Meeting. The company intends to stipulate that if the Company is to conduct the following acts and such acts may harm the Bond-type Class Shareholders, a resolution at a General Class Shareholders Meeting, consisting of Bond-type Class Shareholders, will be required in the Company’s Articles of Incorporation.

- Merger as a result of which the Company will become the disappearing company or a share exchange or share transfer by which the Company becomes a wholly-owned subsidiary (excluding share transfers solely conducted by the Company).
- Approval by the Company’s Board of Directors of a demand for cash-out made by the Company’s special controlling shareholders against other shareholders of the Company.

As described above, the Company believes that the Bond-type Class Shares do not have any features that may cause Common Shareholders to suffer a disadvantage from dilution of their voting rights. In addition, the Company contemplates making the Amendment so that it will be authorized to issue the Bond-type Class Shares promptly after taking into account the future market environment, etc. as an option for its capital strategy, from the perspective of ensuring flexibility and promptness under its financial strategies so that it can respond to all possible circumstances.
